

Care Coordinator SOP

Your whole day lives on one screen: Care Coordinator. It shows who to call and when — the calls themselves happen from each patient's profile.

1 The screen, at a glance

Same colors everywhere: sky = Patient Intake, teal = Welcome Call — on the day strip and on each column's title dot.

- 1 Day strip — every call booked on the calendar, laid out across the day. Flip between yesterday / today / tomorrow with the arrows.

2 Patient Intake column — new leads who started the web form and want a call.

3 Welcome Call column — approved patients waiting on their welcome call.

2 One card, explained

Jane Sample

State: NY · Dr. Rivera — Lakeside Endocrine

In network

Partial

UnitedHealthcare

CGM: Pharmacy

Call

Communications

Log attempt

Booking link

THE NAME

The name is the link. Click it to open the patient's own page — there is no separate Open button.

GREEN EDGE

Someone has already tried this patient. Gray edge = not yet touched.

PILLS

The facts at a glance: in-network or not, how much of their form is done, who their insurance is, and how they're covered. A missing pill means the answer is unknown — not "no".

COUNTS & TIMES

The small phone and chat numbers are the calls and texts so far. "N days" is how long they've been waiting; a booked card shows its call time.

BUTTONS

Each one is explained in the next section.

3 What each button does

And what happens after you press it — nothing here is a mystery box.

ON THE CARD

Call

→ Rings the patient without leaving this page — the call goes out on the company number. The pop-up carries the attempt form, so you can fill in

"What happened on the call?" while still talking. The call shows up in their history on its own.

 Log attempt

→ The same attempt form without placing a call — for right after you hang up. It's also inside the pop-up when you click a booking on the day strip.

 Communications

→ A side panel opens on this card: the full text thread and call history in one place, and you can read and send texts from it.

 Booking link

→ Opens the calendar link to send the patient — the dropdown picks Intake call or Welcome call. When the patient books, the time appears on the day strip and their card moves under Scheduled on its own.

Jane Sample

→ Clicking the patient's name opens their own page — notes, logging an attempt, and Advance all live there. This screen is your view of the day; the patient's page is where the work happens.

LOGGING AN ATTEMPT — WHEREVER YOU DO IT

Log call attempt

→ Answered or not, three things are saved with the patient: your "What happened on the call?" note (it shows on the notes line at the bottom of their card), the "Follow up on" date, and one more on their attempt count. The card's left edge turns green and they slide to Unscheduled · Future until that date.

Advance

→ Everything you've entered is saved, and the patient's stage moves forward. Their card leaves your columns right away. One press does it — if you ever see an "...is already..." message, they had already moved on; nothing happens twice.

ON ITS OWN

Nothing

→ The page keeps itself fresh on its own, about every minute — Refresh at the top does it right now. A patient who vanishes from a list has moved forward.

4 How patients sort themselves

Each column is the same 2×2. Nothing to file — every patient lands in exactly one box on their own.

SCHEDULED

Today

A booked call on today's calendar. A booking always wins — it shows here no matter what else is going on. The next call up is shaded darker.

SCHEDULED

Future

Booked for another day. Leave them be — they appear under Today on the right morning.

UNSCHEDULED

Today

No booking, and due for a call: their follow-up date is today, already past, or blank. Blank counts as due — call them.

UNSCHEDULED

Future

You logged an attempt, so their follow-up date moved to the next day. They return to Today on their own.

The lists sort themselves too: booked calls by their time, everyone else longest-waiting first.